A Foodie's GUIDE TO TAIWAN

Taiwan

THE HEART OF ASIA

Fancy some local delicacies

Food is a major attraction for travellers in Taiwan. Whether you are a vegetarian, non-vegetarian or vegan, it offers all in its palette.

You can find authentic Indian flavours at the Indian restaurants (which are abundant now) or if you love experimenting, try something from the regional Taiwanese cuisine. The island nation has developed as a hub for diverse food and beverage offerings and caters to the taste buds of travellers from across the globe. With an amalgamation of different cultures such as Chinese, Taiwanese, Japanese, Thai, Indian, Italian and others, you are sure to get spoiled for choice of food.

Here are top ten picks of 'not to miss' food and beverages, to try when you're in Taiwan.

1 Dumplings (Xiǎo lóng bǎo)

Easily available at all the restaurants and street side vendors, dumplings are an all time-favourite. Made from a thin fine dough with vegetables stuffed inside. They range from cabbage, spring onions, tofu or mixed veg dumplings. Be ready to tickle your taste buds with boiled, steamed or fried dumplings and the spicy chilli and soy sauce.

Best places for dumplings:
○ Dian Shui Luo, 3F, No. 299, Lequn 3rd Road, Taipei 104, Taiwan
○ Din Tai Fung, No. 194, Section 2, Xinyi Road, Taipei 106, Taiwan

2 Bubble Tea (Pearl milk tea)

Taiwan is known to produce some of the finest teas in the world. The pearl milk tea, popularly known as the Bubble Tea or Boba tea, globally tops the charts of tea lovers. You'll find it everywhere and it does act as a refreshing drink to quench your thirst, whilst strolling down the street taking in all the sights. The chewy tapioca ball-filled tea is much loved for its multi-layered revolutionary flavours.

Best places for Bubble Tea:
○ Chun Shui Tang, B1, No. 9, Songshou Road, Shinkong Mitsukoshi A9, Taipei 108, Taiwan
○ 50 Lan, No. 48-4, Xining Road, Taipei 108, Taiwan

3 Fried Chicken

For those obsessed with chicken, this is the place to be. A country that is full of food outlets with peculiar tastes of fried chicken, you cannot afford to miss this out. To calm your hunger pangs, it's easy to pick up deep fried chicken steak or chicken pieces from any of the late-night food stalls or street side shop. Night markets are the hot-spots for snacks and quick bites like this.

Best places for fried chicken:
○ Monga Fried Chicken, No. 337, Nanjing East Road, Taipei 105, Taiwan
○ J&G Fried Chicken, No. 121-1, Hanzhong Street, Taipei 108, Taiwan

4 Red Bean Cakes

This popular Taiwanese dessert is made from a waffle-pancake like batter and cooked in special cast iron pans. Food stands are now selling these in various flavours from pudding filled to savory curry and radish wheel cakes.

Best places for red bean cakes:
○ Guan Pei, 1F, No.3, Beiping West Road, Taipei 100, Taiwan
○ Sometimes Bean, 1F, No. 399, Yanhsou Street, Taipei 105, Taiwan

5 Fruit Tea

A perfect blend of fruit juice and tea that contains a bit of Oolong as a base. Some common ingredients are pineapple, lime, passion fruit and a few others and some brown sugar syrup. Its sweet and tangy taste is perfect to soothe your senses and relax.

Best places to have fruit tea:
○ SOMA, No. 23, Section 1, Dunhua South Road, Taipei 106, Taiwan
○ CoCo, No. 4, Section 2, Wuchang Street, Taipei 108, Taiwan

6 Green Onion Scallion Pancakes

Something similar to stuffed paratha or naan in India, the green onion scallion pancakes are a savoury Taiwanese appetiser. A simple recipe but a hot favourite street food. These are crispy, flaky and chewy. It's one of the most popular and ubiquitous dishes in Taiwan. Adding things like sweet soy glaze, spicy sauce or veggies and meats, you can make it your own.

Best places for Green Onion Pancakes:
○ Tian Jin Onion Pancake, No. 1, Lane 6, Yongkang Street, Taipei 106, Taiwan
○ Hsiung Chi Scallion Pancake, No. 2, Lane 108, Section 4, Roosevelt Road, Taipei 110, Taiwan

7 Pineapple cakes

Got a sweet tooth? Then you must try these small short crust pastries filled with pineapple paste. Perfect for a sweet treat after dinner or any meal. It goes well with a hot cup of Oolong tea as well. Pineapple cakes are renowned Taiwanese snack made of flour, butter, sugar, eggs, Chinese squash and pineapple jam. The fillings inside are full of local authentic flavours.

Best places for Pineapple Cakes:
○ Sunny Hills Taipei Store, 1F, No. 1, Alley 4, Lane 36, Section 5, Minsheng East Road, Taipei 105, Taiwan
○ Chia Te Bakery, No. 88, Nanjing East Road, Taipei 105, Taiwan

8 Hot Pot

Going to a hot pot restaurant, you are the chef and you get to pick your own food. You can add a soup filled with a lot of vegetables to your hot pot. And the other half can be full of fresh dumplings, meat or vegetables and green onions and you can merge them into the sauces to suit your taste. It's fun creating your palette and eat it too.

Best places for hot pot:
○ Mala Hot Pot, 3F, No. 22, Songshou Road, Taipei 110, Taiwan
○ Ding Wang Hot Pot, No. 89, Guangfu North Road, Taipei 105, Taiwan

9 Breakfast Soy Milk

In Taiwan, breakfast food includes egg pancake, rice roll, fried dumplings, turnip cake, small steamed buns, and scallion pancake. And hot or cold soy milk is always on the menu, whether it is sweet or savoury.

What makes this a hit amongst the locals could be due to its smooth and creamy texture, which is more enjoyable when taken hot. They add granulated sugar into the soy milk, so remember to stir well. And what goes best with soy milk? It's none other than Youtiao! Even after being left out for awhile, the fried dough stick remains crispy. It boasts an airy inside, which nicely absorbs the soy milk. It sure qualifies as comfort breakfast food.

Best places for soy milk:
○ World Soymilk King, No. 284, Section 2, Yonghe Road, New Taipei City 23445, Taiwan
○ Fuhang Soy Milk, 2F, No. 108, Section 1, Zhongxiao East Road, Taipei 100, Taiwan

10 Shaved Ice

First introduced to Taiwan during the Japanese colonial period, shaved ice is a perfect way to end your meal. Ice shaved and garnished with different toppings such as mango, strawberry, cherries or any other fruit is relished by everyone. The top choices include a bowl of mango shaved ice rich in Taiwanese flavor, taro shaved ice and red bean shaved ice and the brown sugar shaved ice.

Best places for shaved ice:
○ Ice Monster, 1F, No. 16, Songgao Road, Taipei 110, Taiwan
